Flood Threat Disappears As Flow Becomes Normal Again

Traffic over the Bellefontaine-av temporary bridge, which was closed to street and interurban cars for more than 24 hours after several supports had been washed out from under it Thursday, was resumed Saturday morning, following repairs on it.

The swollen stream of the Ottawa river was responsible for the damage to the bridge, according to officials of the Lima City Street Rail-way Co., who declared that the fuses of ice and timbers were hurled against the wooden supports of the trestle until several were battered down.

Street car traffic was discontinued in plenty of time, when the river rose, to insure safety.

The river has now subsided nearly to its normal winter flow. W. F. Jamison, 729 E. Market-st. says.

CONVICT RIOTERS SURRENDER

MEXICO CITY—(By Radio via Fort Worth Star-Telegram—Associated Press)—Pachuca, the capital of Hidalgo, is again in the hands of the Obregon troops. Meager reports telling of the fighting there of the last few days and of the capture of the city by the rebels were followed today by a war department bulletin telling of the recapture of the city by the rebels.

The fighting started Wednesday when the rebels attacked. The bulletin said that the rebels lost 116 killed and wounded.

The bulletin said that Oaxaca, the capital of the state of that name, which was held by the rebels, had been captured by a loyal band of mountaineers.

The rebels in Vera Cruz are retreating before the advancing Obregon troops, it is reported here. These troops set out several days ago to attack the rebels.

Special dispatches from the Jalisco front say that the rebels have made an unsuccessful attempt to take Guanajuato.

GUARDS HELD AT BAY 24 HOURS BY ALABAMA PRISONERS

MONTEVALLO, Ala.—(Associated Press)—Sixty-six state convicts at the Aldrich coal mine near here surrendered late last night after having mutinied yesterday morning and held off armed guards throughout the day and night by hurling dynamite. No one was seriously injured, however. It is not known what damage was done to the mine by numerous dynamite explosions but it is said part of the machinery was wrecked.

The convicts gave in after prison officials and owners of the mine went into the stope and appealed to them. What punishment will be given the rioters has not been decided on.

As the convicts entered the mine yesterday morning they warned guards that there would be "no coal mined today." They are said to have gone on strike in protest against alleged cruelty. (Associated Press)

Secretary's Argument Likened To Tempest In Teapot

WASHINGTON—(Associated Press)—Secretary Mellon was challenged today by Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, to a joint debate on the question of the necessity of reducing income surtaxes from 50 per cent to 25 per cent and stopping the issuance of tax-exempt securities as a means of diverting capital to productive enterprise.

Meantime, the house ways and means committee pressed forward to complete consideration of the administrative features of the Mellon tax bill so as to open public hearings on the tax reduction provisions next Monday.

Republican leaders of the house in dealing with the tax subject gave further thought today to the extent to which the Mellon bill must be modified in order to command a majority vote in the house. A conference on this subject was held yesterday, but apparently the leaders got nowhere.

American Mission At Sulin Is Attacked By Soldiers

ORDERED BY ARMY CHIEF

Troopers Are Told to "Kill The Foreign Devils"

PERKIN—(United Press)—Storming down upon Sulu, the first division of regular Hunan troops plundered the village, attacked the American mission of the Passionist Fathers, a Catholic order, fired upon two American missionaries and riddled the American flag, according to reports made to the American legation here.

According to the first advice here, the soldiers acted under direct orders of General Ho Yau Tsun, commanding the Chinese in land province of Hunan. These orders, it was said, were to "destroy the mission and kill the foreign devils."

MISSION ATTACKED

These troops dashed into the village without warning and stormed the mission, attacking the clothing. Miraculously neither of them was injured. They then proceeded to shoot holes in the American flag flying over the mission.

(Flavious Mullins is from Athens, Pa.)

After plundering the town the troops withdrew and last report, were that Sulu was again quiet under control of higher officials. The customary protests are being made to the Chinese government by the American minister.

The head seminary of the Order of the Passionist Fathers is located at Brighton, Mass. The order is comprised of ordained priests whose lives are devoted to missionary work.

FOUR HURT IN AUTO CRASH NEAR OTTAWA

YOUTH 18, GIRL 15, BADLY INJURED

Man And Woman In Party Also Receive Minor Bruises

CARS MEET IN BROADSIDE

Each Sees Other, Stops. Then
Both Plunge Forward

OTTAWA—Two persons were injured seriously and two others sustained minor injuries when the automobiles in which they were riding crashed together six miles northeast of Ottawa, shortly past midnight, Saturday morning.

The injured are: Glen Kersh, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kersh, residing four and one-half miles northeast of Ottawa, shoulder crushed and minor injuries.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norton Fisher, of near Towanda, broken collar bone and minor injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Norton Fisher, of near Towanda, minor cuts and bruises.

RETURNING HOME

The accident occurred on the Crawfordsburg road, an angle with the Billingsburg. Fisher with his wife and daughter, was returning home. Kersh, who had been to Gilboa to attend a basketball game, also was returning home.

According to stories told, each saw the approach of the other and both slackened speed. At a moment when neither believed the other was ready to start across the road, each applied the gas and both cars crashed while running at a high rate of speed.

The Fisher-Buck tourer car was struck squarely at the front door and turned over on its side.

Kersh was driving a Gardner touring, which turned over several times, pinching Kersh beneath the car. He managed to extricate himself from the wreckage and assisted Mr. and Mrs. Fisher in pulling the Buck car from the body of their daughter.

MAN FAINTS

When all four had been removed from the wreckage, they walked to the home of Clarence Conine, nearby. Kersh collapsed as he entered the door.

He later was removed to City hospital, Lima, where following an examination, it was found he had sustained no broken bones.

Miss Fisher was removed to the home of her uncle, Robert Fisher, in Ottawa. She will be taken to City hospital Saturday, for an X-ray examination. Miss Fisher is a high school student in Lepke.

City hospital authorities in Lima said that unless complications should arise, young Kersh would be removed to his home near Ottawa, Sunday.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Susie:

HERE is a girl I met about two weeks ago and I like her very much. A man I am fond of wrote to her and told her to meet me at a certain place, but she did not show up. Two days later I received a note from her saying she was sorry but she could not make it. I am worried that it would do me good for her to write a note and tell her how much I think of her.

WAITING,
I think it is a little too soon for such a declaration.

Probably the reason the girl you admire did not accept your invitation was because of the way it was given. It was most presumptuous of you to tell her to meet you when she evidently had not yet said she would go. Furthermore, she perhaps would have been more inclined to accept if you had suggested calling for her at her home.

Perhaps if you will be a little more tactful in offering your next invitation you will meet with better success.

Dear Miss Smart:
My husband never said anything about my using cosmetics before we were married but how he objects. Do you think he has any right to dictate to me about this?

BLONDE,
No right to dictate, perhaps, but surely a husband may offer suggestions in a case of this kind.

If he did not mention this matter before your marriage, perhaps that was because he felt that he had no right then to make such a request.

It may be that he feels that your use of cosmetics has been too conspicuous. It seems likely that if you use them in moderation he will drop the subject.

Dear Miss Smart:
I am going to stay in style long. I don't know whether to have the shingled bob or the latest style.

SWIFTY,
"To shingle or not to shingle, that is the question" isn't it? I know it must be a hard question to answer and yet you yourself are the only and logical one to answer it. However, the shingled bob is the latest style of wearing one's hair and as far as the length of time it will be popular is concerned, I can't say. Not very long, I imagine. If your hair has any wave in it and you think it would be becoming, why don't you bob it?

Now, I haven't helped you a bit. I know, but, you'll just have to decide that question yourself.

FARRA CONVICTED OF MURDER

Found Guilty Of Killing Sheriff
Moore At Caldwell

JURY RECOMMENDS MERCY

Sentence To Life Imprisonment
Carried In Verdict

CALDWELL, Ohio — (United Press) — Elmer Farrar smiled contentedly upon the jury which condemned him last night to life imprisonment. So did his wife and aged father.

During Farrar's five-day trial on a charge of murdering Sheriff Charles Moore on the streets of Caldwell, all three had been fearful.

When the jury's verdict was announced—first degree murder with a recommendation for mercy—they realized that Farrar had escaped the electric chair. They felt a great victory had been won.

The verdict came after five and one-half hours of deliberation.

While the jury ballisticated Farrar, his young wife, his father and six-year-old son, waited in the courtroom, the boy's head nestled in his mother's lap.

DENIES FIRING SHOT

Farrar admitted being an occupant of the car with George Siebenhuch when the sheriff was slain as he attempted to arrest the man for shoplifting, but denied firing the fatal shot.

When arrested each declared the other fired the shots.

Later, however, Farrar signed a confession that he had done the actual shooting, but on the witness stand he repudiated the confession, declaring it had been wrung from him by "third degree" methods.

Here is Farrar's story: "This is a great life," says Ted. "Next summer we will be wishing we had some of this cold just as we are now wishing we had some of last summer's heat."

"I was locked up all day Tuesday and all night with nothing to eat. The next day was the same. In the evening, a couple of detectives came in. They said 'we'll sweat you out' and went away. Next morning the detectives came back and got me all stirred up by asking a lot of questions and then denying everything I told them."

"After they went out, I said it was an awful way to treat a man and Eddie Groves, deputy sheriff, said he didn't like it either."

"On the day of the funeral, they took me down, made me look at the dead man. 'Ain't that nice?' they asked me. On Friday they came back and tormented me for a statement. I gave them one, saying Siebenhuch killed Moore."

"Those detectives left Friday night, but others kept coming in every day, trying to make me say I did it. When the detectives left, they told me at the jail to cut me off from food and water."

"On Saturday, I didn't have a bite to eat or a drop to drink, and it was the same on Sunday. I got awful weak and nervous. I begged for water, but Sheriff Shaffer said he had to obey orders and not give me any."

"They told me Monday they would give me anything I wanted if I would confess that I shot Moore. I was almost crazy for water and ready to do anything for a drink, but I didn't want to go to the chair for a good meal and I told them so."

"Then they told me I wouldn't be electrocuted. They said one man down here who killed two men got off with a five-year sentence and only served three years. I ought to get off just as easy, they said."

"Then they went out and got me supper and I made them statement they wanted and signed it, saying that I shot Moore."

"All the time I was in jail people kept running up to my cell, peeping in at me, talking to me, and trying to get me to confess."

"But none of them was a friend of mine. They wouldn't let my friends, my father or my wife in the jail."

Farrar's story of his experience after his arrest is denied by everyone he accuses of cruelty.

Evidence and arguments in Farrar's case ended late Friday afternoon, and the case went to the jury.

Siebenhuch is yet to be tried.

BOULEVARD LIGHTS FOR CENTRAL-AV PLANNED

Central-Av leading from the Pennsylvania railroad station is to be lighted with the boulevard system. City Electrician Robert Brodt will start installing the new lights on the avenue from the depot down to Wayne St at once. Six of the big boulevard lights are to be placed in the block.

Installation of the boulevard lighting system to the depot is expected to enhance greatly the appearance of that section of Lima and will also, city officials believe, give arrivals in the city a much better first impression of Lima.

TRAFFIC BUREAU MEMBERS ATTEND CHICAGO MEETING

John S. Link and J. Frank Hubbard, head of the traffic bureau of the Board of Commerce leave the first of the week for Chicago where they will represent some local shippers before the meeting of the consolidated classification committee of the railroads of the country.

This committee has charge of fixing the classification of freight for convenience of the roads. Freight rates usually are divided into two parts, class rates and commodity rates, and the classification of freight is made to give the roads opportunity to use class rates.

SUIT SETTLED

PHILADELPHIA—Confirmation was here today that the suit for $350,000 against Harry K. Thaw brought by Fred Gump, Jr., of Kansas City has been privately settled for less than $100,000. The suit was the result of charges that Thaw was a member of the gang in a New York hotel in 1907 and had subjected him to "gross and savage indignities."

INCOME STARTS

we are going to see that they stay closed. It is my intention to institute a vice drive at least once every week and keep it up until these places are afraid to reopen. We will raid and keep on raiding as long as there is a saloon or dive illegally operating.

PLAN OF OPERATION

In outlining his plans to curb banditry, Director Butler said that armed guards and observation booths would be placed at all the 21 entrances and exits of Philadelphia to prevent the escape of highwaymen and to check up on persons entering the city. Stationed at each of these outposts will be an armored motor car, detectives with sawed off shotguns, motorcycle policemen and a permanent sentry whose duty will be to see that no suspicious looking car passes in or out of the city without inspection.

The observation booths will be equipped with telephone and radio communication connecting directly with the electrical bureau in city hall, where all robberies and holdups are first reported. When the central station receives the report of a holdup, a flash will be sent to all the outposts giving a description of the highwayman and his automobile, if one is employed in making his getaway. From the outposts the armored cars and motorcycles will begin a simultaneous movement toward the center of the city, combing every street on the way. A bandit car will be placed at each of the 41 police station houses.

Their line will be next to impenetrable, Director Butler believes. "This system," he said, "will be put into effect immediately as a part of the cleanup program. Instead of the bandit-chasing squads starting from the city hall after a holdup, which places them in the position of a pursuer running on behind their prey, they will meet them headon, giving the police the advantage."

BODY IS IDENTIFIED AS AMERICAN AVIATOR

LONDON—The body of a man washed up by the sea between Dungeness and Rye was definitely identified today as that of Lawrence Sperry, intrepid American aviator of Garden City, N. J.

President Jackson, representative of the Case Sperry Gyroscope Co., in London, identified the body by physical characteristics and the clothing, the latter bearing trade marks of New York firms.

Sperry lost his life when he attempted to fly from England to the continent last month in his special twenty-foot "flyer" plane. A workman reported seeing the plane collapse and fall into the British channel. Later the machine was found but there was no trace of the body until it was washed up by the sea yesterday.

Alto a pioneer in aviation, Sperry's greatest achievement was development of the aerial torpedo during the war.

declared that the percentage of tax-exempts on the market—$11,000,000,000—was so small compared with the $120,000,000,000 to $125,000,000 of other securities "as to give an appearance of the whole discussion as a tempest in a teapot."

Senator Couzens cited from treasury reports to support his contention that the receivers of large incomes are not escaping any such large amount of surtaxes thru the ownership of tax-exempt securities as would "make it desirable for the government to lower surtaxes in order to secure more revenue for itself or to release capital for business investments."

The Michigan senator declared that states and municipalities must have funds from some source for improvements and asked the secretary if he intended that it was less productive to invest money in school houses, waterworks, lighting plants, state railway plants, good roads, colleges, sewerage systems and health-serving institutions than it was in theatres, office buildings, motion picture houses, ball parks, distilleries, breweries, chewing gum and cosmetic factories and the like.

TRANSFER OF OWNERSHIP

Senator Couzens argued that to reduce the surtax would result in a deluge of dividends out of industry to private individuals and added that the mere transfer of ownership from one person to the other thru the sale of stocks and other investments would "have no constructive force in the country's business." On the other hand, he said, the distribution of cash dividends would result in taking out of many industries large amounts of capital which they now hold in their treasury.

"As a personal experience in this matter," Senator Couzens wrote, "I desire to point out that during the ten years that the federal government has collected income taxes, I have paid into the federal treasury $8,223,679, nearly all of which has

ULES VERNE wrote about the submarine—and his prophetic vision of the future was amazingly accurate. Verne also wrote "A Trip to the Moon," in which a gigantic cannon fired a shell as big as a house, men and a dog inside. This shell missed the moon and dropped back on earth, in the ocean. Prof. Goddard talks of duplicating this stunt, a man to travel in a rocket.

The idea of being able to journey out thru space among the stars fires the imagination. Artist Satterfield in the accompanying pen-picture shows a man making such a trip in the year 5000. It is not impossible, provided a device can be invented to counteract gravity.

The shortness of human life, however, will prevent a man from ever getting far out into space. To visit most of the stars you see at night, an airplane would have to travel 1000 miles an hour for so many centuries that it gives one a headache to contemplate it.

FROM ONE PRISON TO ANOTHER

A USTRALIAN newspapers feature a story about a Papuan boy who traveled 80 miles on foot in 12 hours, delivering a message. The journey was all the more remarkable because it was over high mountains.

It's a phenomenal achievement, to us who have the telephone, radio, auto, train and mail service, to keep us in touch with distant places. Invention has relieved us of a lot of slavery—even if it does let us out of one prison merely to wall us inside another.

POLITICAL BUNK

H. G. WELLS, defeated for Parliament, looks back and declares he'll never again run for office. Says Wells: "I find that a man cannot retain his freedom of mind as a candidate. There are so many divergent views among voters that a man cannot speak his mind frankly and expect to gain votes. He must trim his sails to certain breezes."

This is a common theory among most politicians, the some of them may obey it subconsciously—without realizing. But how many of them ever gave the theory a fair test by being 100 per cent frank to the people—without bunkum, deceit or pussyfooting and cuning "psychological strategy"?

YOUR PET ANNOYANCE

WHAT is your chief annoyance at present? Be glad you're not Mrs. Elsie Silva, widow, in Boston. Christmas Day, drowsy after a big dinner, she yawned—and her jaw snapped out of place. A doctor fixed her up. But the same thing happened again, five times. Every time she'd yawn, the jaw would dislocate. As this is written Elsie has gone to a hospital to see if she can get permanent repairs.

She'll certainly have something to talk about, for the rest of her life. What a pity, this malady couldn't be extended and applied to political orators to take effect as soon as they opened their mouths.

HELPING OURSELVES

MISFORTUNE can frequently be turned to advantage. Burglars stole some coats from a store in Waltham, Mass. The shrewd store manager advertises: "If the gentlemen who took the overcoats will bring them back, we will exchange them and see that they are well-fitted, as we carry a complete line."

Troubles and mistakes can be converted into good investments. Mistakes usually prevent us from making greater blunders later.

Sacramento, Calif., bride-groom asks divorce because she won't kiss him, but maybe he has a mustache.

"Some Present Day Lessons That Moses Teaches"

(Exodus 3:1-12)

Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father in law, the priest of Midian; and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb.

And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of the bush: and he looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here I am.

And he said, Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

Moreover he said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God.

And the Lord said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and I have heard their cry by reason of their task-masters; for I know their sorrows;

And I am come down to deliver them out of the hands of the Egyptians, and to bring them up into a good land and a large, unto a land flowing with milk and honey; unto the place of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

Now therefore, behold, the cry of the children of Israel is come upon me, and I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them.

Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

And he said, Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

BY WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Our previous Bible Talk dealt with Jethro as a dutiful son. He had risen to power in Egypt, and, because of the favor shown him by Pharaoh, he was able to provide bountifully for his father and all his brethren.

Everything seemed satisfactory; the monarch was generous to Jacob and his family, and Jacob blessed the monarch. But Joseph died and that Pharaoh died. Some seventy years passed.

Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph. And he said unto his people, Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we.

"Come on, let us deal wisely with them; lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that, when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land." Therefore they did set over them taskmasters to afflict them with their burdens. And they built for Pharaoh treasure cities, Pithom and Raamses.

But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were grieved because of the children of Israel.

"And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour.

And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field; all their service, wherein they made them serve, was with rigour."

THE BURNING BUSH

Then we have the record of the birth of Moses, his providential rescue from death decreed by Pharaoh against the male children of the Israelites, his education in the house of Pharaoh, the avenging of the killing of a Hebrew by an Egyptian and his flight into Midian.

There he found Jethro, the priest of Midian, and married one of his seven daughters. He kept the flocks of his father-in-law and, in the course of his daily labors, "led the flock to the back side of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, and to Horeb." This brings us to the text for today—the call that came to Moses to deliver Israel.

THE SUDDEN CALL

One of the scholars of his day, he was apparently making no use of his talents. He was eighty years old; his life, considering his preparation for large usefulness, seemed to have been thrown away. Such was the fact that his curiosity so much aroused by the judgment passed on an old man leading a lonely life in a desert.

All at once a call comes to him to do a great and never-to-be-forgotten work. It comes in an unexpected place and in an unexpected way. Who, but the Almighty, would have known where to find just the right man for such a work.

In innumerable cases, similar calls have come—the flame was not visible and the voice was not audible, but the words were as distinct and the impression made as definite. The response was as ready and the work as necessary, even tho it may not have been as conspicuous or as important. Much more would have been accomplished if a similar response had been made by all who have received calls to have a part in the execution of the plans of the Almighty.

MOSES' MODESTY

The second lesson is to be found in the modesty of Moses. The first lesson to be drawn from the verses quoted is that "God keeps watch above His own"; that the sorrows of the just are known to the Heavenly Father and that a record is kept of the crimes of the oppressors.

There is no more important lesson for the world at this very moment. Greed is blind, and it only needs to be put in possession of force to insure cruelty. This is true whether it is the greed of an individual, a corporation, a community, or of a nation.

MOSES' MODESTY

The second lesson is to be found in the modesty of Moses. He was not a swaggering egotist, demanding a commission for some choice service. Humility is one of the greatest of the virtues; it was constantly emphasized by the Saviour. His apostles were chosen by Him—none of them solicited a place. There is a natural respect for the weak who are prepared for service but await a call to it, just as there is a natural resentment at the presumptionlessness of the officious.

Moses had just the preparation needed for the work to which he was called: he was related by blood to the Children of Israel and his defense of one of his race when unjustly attacked showed that his life at court had not separated his sympathies from his people. Possibly God had a special reason for selecting one who did not advertise his own merits; it was easier for Him to work thru one who relied upon divine assistance than thru one who relied upon himself.

Then, too, one who recognized that his strength was from the Lord would not be tempted to claim credit for himself for whatever was done. When the Lord commanded Gideon to diminish his army from thirty-two thousand to three hundred before making an attack upon the Midianites, he gave as a reason that the Children of Israel might boast of their own strength if they won a victory with a large army.

GOD HELPS HIS PEOPLE

Third, God will help those who choose and send forth to do His work. In our text he said, "I will answer the protestations of the Fisk block could tell. I'll drop in here for a bowl of soup. Strong."

Union street. Nothing new on it but the Barn hotel. Who remembers when the probate court guarded the old Lutheran church from the other faction? The best families once lived in this block. If I had six shillings I'd take a Turkish bath. There's Ollie DeWeese, original Ford dealer, Main street, north. What strange tales the Fisk block could tell. I'll drop in here for a bowl of soup. Strong.

Lunched on canned dried beef and French fried potatoes, with an apple dumpling for the sweet. My wife, poor wretch, still with Doe in DeWeese's town.

Out and strolled about. South Main near the bridge. Whatever became of pretty Marie Smith? Do you remember the old Pabst building?

Nothing of import at the post office, towards the shoppe, meeting M'sieur Billie Jones, the retired pumper; and Albert Creep, the underwriter. To my hairdresser, the chairs filled with ladies, getting bobs and washes. Another prediction of zero. Shoppers hurrying for the heavies. Saw M'sieur Watt, the banker, and M'sieur Fast, the new treasurer of the big combine, money.

All the morning casting up kitchen accounts. And trying to find a place to sell the dirt from the vacuum cleaner. It should make a super fertilizer.

When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God up this mountain.

Moses responded to the call and went forth to write one of the most brilliant chapters in human history. The will of the Almighty was expressed thru him.

What a picture! Here was a man who was reared in Pharaoh's household, and then became a fugitive from justice; then he reappeared as a herdsman committed to deliver a people from bondage. He went before the mightiest monarch in the then known world and calmly demanded the name of the Almighty, that he let the Children of Israel go. Could audacity be more audacious?

Such conduct on the part of an unarmed individual would be unthinkable if he relied upon himself, but it was not an aged tender of flocks who appeared before Pharaoh; it was a commissioner from the Most High with a grave duty to perform. If we can judge by his manner by his language, he doubtless acted something like Elijah did later when he issued his challenge to the prophets of Baal and mocked them when their god did not answer with fire.

INEVITABLE PUNISHMENT

Then follows the tragic story of a haughty king subdued. Plague after plague was visited upon Egypt and time after time Pharaoh reiterated his defiance, until finally, on the last night, the first-born was smitten in each Egyptian home and the bonds of the oppressor were broken.

Here, too, is a lesson that the world has been slow to learn, namely, that "the wages of sin is death." Every great wrong terminates in the loss of human life because it is still difficult to awaken people to a realization of the fact that wrong will always bring punishment—the greater the wrong, the greater the punishment.

No matter how invincible the wrong doer may seem, no matter how helpless the victim may appear, the invisible forces that fight on the side of truth are always triumphant. If sin is not its own avenger, working ruin upon the sinner in the end an avenger finally appears, whether the sinner be a nation or the world combined.

NO MATCH FOR GOD

Pharaoh laughed at the threats of Moses and held in contempt the race of Moses and held in contempt the race of God. But he was no match for the God of Moses and of Israel. His armies were sufficient toward off the attacks of ordinary foes, but they had no weapons with which to fight flies and frogs and lice and locusts; still less was he able to thwart the angel of death when that grim messenger started on his visit to the homes which had no bloodstains on the lintels of the doors.

And so with all the great conspirators against mankind; they provide against every contingency which they can calculate, but they have no way of measuring the resources of an infinite God—the righteous Judge who decrees and has the means wherewith to execute His decrees.

Let the rulers of the nations of today take notice. If they are foolish enough to match their pigmy strength against the Ruler of the Universe, they will sooner or later pass thru the experiences visited upon the ruler of Egypt.

The God who reigns over Babylon and Nineveh and Tyre and Egypt is the God who is reigning yet."

Harpster Proves More Than Ordinary Team Against Burdette's Gritty Bunch

Central Hi Winners In Game That Held Crowd Breathless

Tense with excitement and thrills with the unusual action of the game, over a thousand ardent Lima basketball fans broke into a pandemonium of joy as two baskets in the final minutes of an overtime contest resulted victory for Central over Cleve-land Shaw, reputed to be one of Ohio's leading cage teams. The final score was 21 to 17.

From a standpoint of thrills and superb action the game was one of the best ever played on the Central floor. Both teams strained to the minute, keyed up to big pitch of fighting spirit and goaded to victory by the swaying breaks of the game, displayed an work and effective basket shooting that was phenomenal.

Throughout the entire game first the team and then another led, only to be topped by a brilliant and rushing drive down the floor for a lead goal. In the first half each team waded a rather conservative game, one in which defensive tactics played a large part.

Central managed to keep ahead at times during the first period except twice. Shaw took the lead at the beginning of the game when Nimmerger caged a foul called on King. Once again in that period Shaw led when Mixer made a foul, called again on King. At the end of the half the red and green was on the long end of an 11 to 8 count.

THE SECOND HALF

At the beginning of the second half each team braced up and faced a deliberate offensive game. The defenses remained figuratively air tight. As the game wore on the two became close caution was thrown to the wind and Shaw and Central unleashed a passing and shooting game that kept the basket sounding.

With a few minutes to play and a score of 17 to 15 Nimmerger tossed it from the center of the floor and did the count. The time was up after but a five minute overtime was decided upon.

During this time Farrell counted one as did King while Hunter and Taylor kept Shaw forwards from the floor. The playing of both teams was clean, hard and of the fighting sort and pleased fans immensely. Of Dayton referred and handled the game in a very creditable manner.

The Central Sophomore team defeated the Seniors 15 to 11 in a preliminary game. The contest was fast and furious and well played by both teams.

IN YEAR 5000

CHARLES VERNING wrote about the submarine—and his prophetic vision of the future was amazingly accurate. Verner also wrote "A Trip to the Moon," in which a gigantic cannon fired a shell as big as a house, men and a dog inside. This shell missed the moon and dropped back on earth, in the ocean. Prof. Goddard talks of duplicating this stunt, a man to travel in a rocket.

The idea of being able to journey out thru space among the stars fires the imagination. Artist Satterfield in the accompanying pen-picture shows a man making such a trip in the year 5000. It is not impossible, provided a device can be invented to counteract gravity.

The shortness of human life, however, will prevent a man from ever getting far out into space. To visit most of the stars you see at night, an airplane would have to travel 1000 miles an hour for so many centuries that it gives one a headache to contemplate it.

FROM ONE PRISON TO ANOTHER

A USTRALIAN newspapers feature a story about a Papuan boy who traveled 80 miles on foot in 15 hours, delivering a message. The journey was all the more remarkable because it was over high mountains.

It's a phenomenal achievement, to us who have the telephone, radio, auto, train and mail service, to keep us in touch with distant places. Invention has relieved us of a lot of slavery—even if it does let us out of one prison merely to wall us inside another.

POLITICAL BUNK

H. G. WELLS, defeated for Parliament looks back and declares he'll never again run for office. Says Wells: "I find that a man cannot retain his freedom of mind as a candidate. There are so many divergent views among voters that a man cannot speak his mind frankly and expect to gain votes. He must trim his sails to certain breezes."

This is a common theory among most politicians, the some of them may obey it subconsciously—without realizing. But how many of them ever gave the theory a fair test by being 100 per cent frank to the people without bunkum, deceit or pussyfooting and culling "psychological strategy"?

YOUR PET ANNOYANCE

WHAT is your chief annoyance at present? Be glad you're not Mrs. Elsie Silva, widow, in Boston. Christmas Day, drowsy after a big dinner, she yawned—and her jaw snapped out of place. A doctor fixed her up. But the same thing happened again, five times. Every time she'd yawn, the jaw would dislocate. As this is written Elsie has gone to a hospital to see if she can get permanent repairs.

She'll certainly have something to talk about, for the rest of her life. What a pity, this malady couldn't be extended and applied to political orators to take effect as soon as they opened their mouths.

HELPING OURSELVES

MISFORTUNE can frequently be turned to advantage. Burglars stole some coats from a store in Waltham, Mass. The shrewd store manager advertises: "If the gentlemen who took the overcoats will bring them back, we will exchange them and see that they are well-fitted, as we carry a complete line."

Troubles and mistakes can be converted into good investments. Mistakes usually prevent us from making greater blunders later.

BRYAN'S WEEKLY BIBLE TALK

"Some Present Day Lessons That Moses Teaches"

(Exodus 3:1-12)

Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father in law, the priest of Midian; and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb.

And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of the bush: and he looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I.

And he said, Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

Moreover he said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God.

And the Lord said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and I have heard their cry by reason of their task-masters; for I know their sorrows.

And I am come down to deliver them out of the hands of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land unto a good land and a large, unto the place of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

Now therefore, behold, the cry of the children of Israel is come upon me, and I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them.

Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

And he said, Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

Only a small percentage—were leased out to industrial corporations and the use of the lash was permitted for the enforcement of discipline. Such punishment cannot safely be entrusted to officials; the use of the lash by private corporations was an invitation to indolence.

A young man from another State, arrested under questionable circumstances and leased to a lumber company, was whipped to death. The object lesson was sufficient; the leasing system was entirely abrogated and the use of the lash prohibited.

The sense of justice was aroused and greed was stripped of its power to oppress.

THE DAY OF RETRIBUTION

That is only one of many illustrations. Bancroft, the historian, says that "the voice of the universal conscience" is the nearest approach on earth to the voice of God. This conscience is awakened when the facts are known, and in popular government knowledge of a wrong always leads to a remedy.

Sometimes a nation, actuated by greed, employs force and wrong is done on a large scale. Sometimes the wrong doer is so powerful that suffering humanity seems helpless, but it only seems so. God hears the cry of the weak, treasures up the tears and weighs the blood that is shed. When the day of retribution comes, there is always a deliverer ready for the task; punishment is administered to the guilty and succor is brought to the afflicted.

The story of the deliverance of the Children of Israel is the most conspicuous of all such instances because the story in all its details has been preserved for the instruction of man.

There was a Moses—his name has ever since been used as a synonym for a deliverer. The suffering Israelites knew nothing of him and he had no intimation of his work.

There he found Jethro, the priest of Midian, and married one of his seven daughters. He kept the flocks of his father-in-law and, in the course of his daily labors, "led the flock to the back side of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb." This brings us to the text for today, the call that came to Moses to deliver Israel.

His marvelous escape by means of an ark in the bulrushes had been forgotten; his training in the court of the king seemed to have been wasted, his crime, the result of a sympathy for his people suddenly aroused by a sense of injustice, had made him an exile.

be with thee." Then He gave him a token that would be proof that He had kept His word:

"When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God up this mountain."

Moses responded to the call and went forth to write one of the most brilliant chapters in human history. The will of the Almighty was expressed thru him.

What a picture! Here was a man who was reared in Pharaoh's household, and then became a fugitive from justice; then he reappeared as a herdsman commissioned to deliver a people from bondage. He went before the mightiest monarch in the then known world and calmly demanded in the name of the Almighty that he let the Children of Israel go. Could audacity be more audacious?

Such conduct on the part of an unarmed individual would be unthinkable if he relied upon himself, but it was not an aged tender flocks who appeared before Pharaoh; it was a commissioner from the Most High with a grave duty to perform. If we can judge by his manner by his language, his voice commanding. He doubtless acted something like Elijah did later when he issued his challenge to the prophets of Baal and mocked them when their god did not answer with fire.

Let the rulers of the nations of today take notice. If they are foolish enough to match their pigmy strength against the Ruler of the Universe, they will sooner or later pass thru the experiences visited upon the ruler of Egypt.

Here, too, is a lesson that the world has been slow to learn, namely, that "the wages of sin is death."

Every great wrong terminates in the loss of human life because it is still difficult to awaken people to a realization of the fact that wrong will always bring punishment—the greater the wrong, the greater the punishment.

No matter how invincible the wrong doer may seem, no matter how helpless the victim may appear, the invisible forces that fight on the side of truth are always triumphant. If sin is not its own avenger, working ruin upon the sinner in the end an avenger finally appears, whether the sinner be a nation or the world combined.

NO MATCH FOR GOD

Pharaoh laughed at the threats of Moses and held in contempt the race in bondage, but he was no match for the God of Moses and of Israel. His armies were sufficient to ward off the attacks of ordinary foes, but they had no weapons with which to fight flies and frogs and lice and locusts; still less was he able to thwart the angel of death when that grim messenger started on his visit to the homes which had no bloodstains on the lintels of the doors.

And so with all the great conspirators against mankind; they provide against every contingency which they can calculate, but they have no way of measuring the resources of an infinite God—the righteous Judge who decrees and has the means wherewith to execute His decrees.

Let the rulers of the nations of

NEW YORK—(Associated Press)—Operators on the long side met resistance in their campaign for higher prices in today's market. Heavy profit-taking and short selling in some sections of the list coincided with bullish manifestations in others giving the market a highly irregular appearance.

The customary leaders held fairly well. Impressive strength was shown by a number of the public utility, silk and automotive issues. Rails were up except for the Reading and the New Philadelphia Coal and Iron group, all of which moved up 1 to 2 points. Selling pressure was most evident in St. Paul preferred, Corn Products, General Electric, International Paper, Texas Gulf Sulphur and West Virginia. The closing was steady. Sales approximated 600,000 shares.

eyes, when a man marries a woman, marries her for better or for worse, including the dents she contracted prior to marriage."

That was the stand which Secretary J. E. Morton of the board of trustees took before the retail bankers meeting Friday noon at the Barr hotel. Morton had put the question up to the credit men. Morton admitted that the courts probably would not sustain his position but he thought it right, anyway. The credit men did not take him up on the question.

It was due to him to launch the educational advertising campaign the coming week. There will be twelve advertisements in the local papers using some of the fact that "character is the basis of credit," said Morton.

Stolen bonds valued in excess of $17,000 recovered here today. The police believe it was a case of bandit gang.

Captain W. Clark of the Canton police force said a man offering $10,000 for the safe. He investigated and found it to be one of a number stolen from the Dalton O. Clark, March 1, 1921.
